
Runaway Tractor wrecks kitchen

A couple had a lucky escape when a tractor and trailer careered across a field and into the side of their cottage in Herefordshire.

The tractor had been hauling wheat from a combine harvester working in a field near the cottage when it was apparently left parked without the handbrake being applied.

Fortunately there was no-one in the garden when the trailer overturned.

The cottage was damaged to such an extent that the fire brigade had to install metal props to support the roof whilst the tractor was pulled out of the kitchen.

Incredibly no-one was injured but a potential tragedy was only inches away as the tractor narrowly missed a gas cylinder at the side of the house that could have exploded if damaged.
